Slug Comparison is the solo project of Fen vocalist/guitarist Doug Harrison. Known for blending darkness and light, acoustic and electric, Harrison first deepened his exploration of these elements with a 2014 solo album that felt like a Part II to Fen's acclaimed album Trails Out Of Gloom. In 2017, Harrison started recording and releasing EP's. After four of them—Ila, b, c and d—Rock Company got in touch and convinced him to bundle these EP's, add a few extra tracks and release them as the successor to his solo debut.

So here is Slug Comparison's second album: When You Were Living Here. The title track and "beings far away" are dedicated to the memory of Eric Rose—Harrison's former roommate, friend, and creative accomplice.
