Phil Vincent's new offering "Backstabber", comes hot on the heels of album 26, Master of Deception. But the man that never seems to sleep, refuses to lower the bar and keeps delivering his trademark heavy rock with massive hooks and tons of melody. Personal loss and experiences helped shape this album, as did the covers of Do it Good (by the late John Sykes) and Theme from a Summer Place, written by Max Steiner. So while the musical palette is varied, the punch is still delivered where it counts. Usual suspects Vince O'Regan (guitar solos) and Jacob Hansen (mastering) stay present. The one man (band) machine that is Phil Vincent, keeps rocking like there is no tomorrow.

Press Quotes

"highly recommended for fans of Modern Melodic Metal"

"you can't stop to tap your foot while listening"

"Twenty albums into a solo career and Phil Vincent still pens memorable and catchy melodic hard rock tunes, and on this album he is adding a little more metal to the proceedings. Crank it up and rock!"

"Phil is out once again to prove that one man CAN do it all – and he succeeds"

"The mix of modern rock styles is impressive and all are well executed"
